Abington Ghost Stories

A brief history of Abington's schools

Abington Township schools have a long and rich history. Four documents detail much of this background. One was written by Helen Shaffer, who began writing about the Abington community in 1937, and later published A Tour of Old Abington in 1960. Her son Howard (Howdy) Shaffer '33 was a driving force in building a strong Alumni Association and developing the Ghost Stories. The township issued a booklet, 50th Anniversary—Township of Abington, in 1956. The Abington Historical Society published Local Abington History in 1976 and the Old York Road Historical Society published Images of America—Abington, Jenkintown and Rockledge in 2000. Information in this article comes from these sources.

The first school in the area was conducted by the Friends Meeting in 1702. The first public school was in a house built by John Tyson in 1822. The school was on one side of his home on Susquehanna Road north of Bradfield Road. It became known as the Valley School, and was abandoned in 1858 when the Plank Road School was built at Easton and Edgemoor roads. Free public schooling was established in 1863. Continued on page 6

From the president: Updating the high school

For those of you still living in the Abington area, much of what I am about to report is old news, but for the many Abington alumni spread across the country, many changes are underway for the Abington School District and Abington High School.

In April 2014, a superintendent's committee was formed to study alternatives to accommodate increases in student enrollment. For the past 3 years, committees have met and reports have been rendered to the Board of School Directors. In March 2015, the superintendent's committee recommended to the board that it should reconfigure the present grade level organization to K-5, 6-8, and 9-12. Abington Junior High would become a middle school, housing grades 6 through 8, and the high school would house students in grades 9 through 12.

The vision statement gives us an image of what is in store: "Abington High School will be a 21st-century, state-of-the-art, innovative learning environment. Promoting student excellence, achievement, and academic exploration will ensure our students are prepared for the nation's fastest growing industries and motivate the next generation of global leaders for the challenges of the future."

To meet such lofty goals, a number of upgrades and changes

es in programs and buildings will be needed. The cost of new construction, renovations to existing buildings, and technology upgrades is estimated at $101.5 million. In March 2017, the school board arranged for a $90 million bond issue towards this work. Stephen A. Schwarzman '65, chairman, chief executive officer, and cofounder of Blackstone Group, a private equity firm, will donate $25 million to support the transformation of the high school.

Schwarzman said, "I owe a great debt of gratitude to Abington High School and passionately believe that the next generation of students are entitled to an education that provides the tools needed to prepare them for future success."

By the time you read this, construction on a new wing, an addition to the gymnasium, and other modifications will be underway. We hope to have some graphics and site maps on the alumni web site and on display at the annual Fifty Plus luncheon. See you there!

Where are they now?

Stan Shorb, '58, MD, is an ophthalmologist, and lives with his wife, Ilona, in Scottsdale, Ariz. They have two sons, Jason and Karl, and a daughter, Megan. Stan has been recognized numerous times as the recipient of the Top Doc Award in ophthalmology and a specialist in laser eye surgery.

Joanne Iacampo DeFlavis '60 graduated from Southern Seminary Junior College, and later married David DeFlavis after meeting him on a blind date in 10th grade. They have two children and five grandchildren. Joanne's interests include Art Goes to School, the Abington Library adult literacy program, and her church. At age 50, Joanne became a Realtor, and is associated with Coldwell Banker Hearthsides. She enjoys working out at the Y and playing tennis. She still meets with a group of women, the Glenside Girls, who have been friends since kindergarten. She also is a member of the Class of 1960 reunion committee, and recently joined the Abington Alumni Association board.

Brenda Shorb Lenahan '60 is a retired teacher and reading specialist. Her husband, J. Clifford (Bud) Lenahan '60 is retired from a career in business. They live in Glencoe, Ill., and Door County, Wisc. Brenda and Bud have a son, A. Teague Lenahan, and a daughter, Mity Lenahan Fowler. Brenda has been active on two boards at the Lyric Opera of Chicago and is an active member of the International Women's Associates in Chicago. Bud continues as an emeritus board member of Elmhurst (Ill.) College.

Peter Drehmann '65 was Abington's first and only state wrestling champion, winning the heavyweight title in 1965. Pete attended the University of Michigan on a football scholarship, played lacrosse, and wrestled. After earning a bachelor's in history, he earned a doctor of veterinary medicine degree from Michigan State in 1977. He worked as a dairy veterinarian for 29 years in Wisconsin, was a college instructor in dairy management from 1983 to 1990, and a farm manager for a 3,000-cow dairy from 2010 to 2013. Pete is still doing veterinarian nutrition consulting work. He and his wife, Marcia, live in Holland, Mich.

Mike Mulhern '72 graduated from Temple University with a degree in accounting and lives in Willow Grove. He has a son, daughter, and grandson. Mike worked as a roofer to pay for college and owned Apple Roofing based in Mount Airy for more than 30 years. The firm specialized in slate copper and did much historical work in the city. Mike enjoys golfing, belongs to Sandy Run Country Club, and coached baseball for many years.

Alfred Quarles '85 attended Millersville University and received his master's in education from Temple University. He is an administrator of homeless and emergency services for Philadelphia County, and works out of the School District of Philadelphia. Al also works part-time for the Philadelphia Eagles, and co-authored a children's book with his 10-year-old who attends Willow Hill Elementary. He regularly serves as a private chef with the Breathing Room Foundation for families going through cancer. He is a doctoral candidate at Gwynedd Mercy University. Al has three children attending Abington schools.

Howard Burrell '86 attended the University of Maine on a basketball scholarship and studied business management. He recently cofounded an AAU boys basketball team, the Abington Lynx. The three teams—7th grade, 9th grade, and 17 and under—play in tournaments from April through August. In addition, Howard is an assistant coach for Abington's 9th grade team, runs HD club basketball clinics at the Ardsley Community Center, and is a huge sports fan. His son is a junior at Abington High and his daughter is in the 5th grade at Copper Beach.

Dominic Reale '86 is the manager of Beer World in Roslyn and has a passion for classic cars. He is restoring a 1968 international pickup truck his father bought new, and which he drove to high school. Dominic helped organize a car show held the second Saturday in October at the New Life Church in Glenside. He is past president of the Roslyn Boys and Girls Club. He and his wife, Lisa Genesio '86, live in Roslyn. His son graduated from Abington High in 2014 and his daughter in 2016.

Wendi Teeple '86 graduated from Arcadia University in 1990. She worked for Employment and Training foundation and ran a Huntington Learning Center in East Brunswick, N.J., before moving to Myrtle Beach, S.C., in 2002. Wendi started the Facebook page "You know you grew up in Abington, PA if you remember..." and encourages all alumni to share their memories and pictures. Wendi says they are a friendly group and welcome all new memories and members.

Natasha Sorrentino Hatton '92 attended Temple University and now lives in Rydal with her husband, Albert Hatton '91 — . They have three children: twins at Abington Junior High School and a daughter at McKinley Elementary. She spends summers in North Wildwood working at Condor Motel, which her parents have owned for more than 30 years. She volunteers for the Abington Educational Foundation and coaches girls on the run at McKinley.

Kevin Bloomfield '07 attended East Stroudsburg University and works at Sandy Run Country Club. He loves sports, especially the Philadelphia Eagles, and is an avid fisherman and golfer. Kevin also referees football, basketball, and lacrosse for the PIAA, GYAC, and CYO. He had a great time at his 10-year reunion.

Sports

Basketball

Abington's boys' and girls' basketball teams provided the highlights for the winter sports season. Both teams advanced to the Pennsylvania state 6A quarterfinals in March.

The boys' team had a terrific season under Coach Charles Grasty '90. They reached the final eight before losing to a strong Hazelton High team, 94-86. In the tough District 1 playoffs, Abington beat Norristown 57-43 as junior Eric Dixon had 23 points. In the semifinals, Lower Merion fell to the Ghosts 72-61 as senior Robbie Heath had 24 points and Dixon 22. In the district final, Abington upset undefeated (27-0) Plymouth-Whitemarsh, 75-73. After trailing 38-28, Dixon and Heath led the comeback with 25 points each. Guard Lucas Monroe had an outstanding floor game. In the state playoffs, Harrisburg was beaten in round one.

Senior Robbie Heath aims for the hoop

Then St. Joseph's Prep fell in round two behind Robbie Heath's 27 points. In the quarterfinal round, Abington lost to Hazleton despite Dixon's 35 points and 13 rebounds and Heath's 30 points. Abington ended the season with a 24-6 record. Congratulations to Coach Grasty and Abington's team for an outstanding season.

The Abington girls under Coach Dan Marsh also reached the state quarterfinals. In the first round, they defeated Wilson High 59-44 as junior Cassandra Brown poured in 25 points. Abington defeated Freedom High 67-55 in round two. In a defensive battle in the quarterfinals, Upper Dublin upset the Ghosts 36-31. Abington trailed 22-9 at the half, and battled to lead by 1 in the fourth quarter, but couldn't hold that margin despite two-spot Camryn Lexow's 11 points. Congratulations to Coach Marsh and the team for a 22-8 record for the season.

Football

Coach Kevin Conlin's football team ended with a 4-6 record, but beat rival Cheltenham 35-20. The team was led by Darryl Davis-McNeil, first-team All Suburban 1 running back. Tom Lukens, Nick Brownholtz, and Jackson Taylor also made All-League.

Soccer

Randy Garber '71 again had a winning team, ending with a 13-5 record. They made the district playoffs, losing 2-0 in the first round to Plymouth-Whitemarsh. Sean Touey made All-State Player of the Year, and also made All-Suburban 1 along with David Maizio.

Field hockey

Katie Small's field hockey team had an 8-9 record, but made the district playoffs. They lost in the first round to Central Bucks West, 3-0. They were led by Aileen Hughes and Natalie McNamara.

Swimming

In the Pennsylvania State Championships, Abington's Sam Henniger earned a silver medal in diving and Matt Bonnell took fourth place in the 500 meter freestyle.

Ellie Daniel '68 was recently inducted into the Pennsylvania Swimming Hall of Fame. She was an Olympic gold medalist in 1968, and also a medalist in the 1972 games. In 1997, Ellie was inducted into the International Swimming Hall of Fame.

Class of 2017 scholarship winners

The Alumni Association awarded $17,600 to deserving graduates of the Class of 2017. Scholarship recipients are (from left), Olivia Barbacane, attending Temple University; Rachel Levin, attending the University of the Arts; Lydia Dankiv, attending Temple University; and Allan Schaible, attending Bloomsburg University. We wish them much success in their chosen fields.

Hall of Fame 2017

Nine Abingtonians were inducted into the Hall of Fame on November 9, 2017.

Richard P. Barrett '77, Government—Mr. Barrett earned his bachelor of arts from Temple University and his law degree from Temple University School of Law. He began working for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Philadelphia in 1990, prosecuting large-scale terrorism, healthcare fraud, drug conspiracy, and organized crime cases. He is an adjunct professor of law at Temple University and chief of official corruption, civil rights, and tax prosecution for the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Brian Brackeen '96, Science—Mr. Brackeen is founder and chief executive officer of Kairos, an artificial intelligence startup specializing in facial recognition and human analysis technology. Kairos was selected by the Wall Street Journal as one of the top 25 startups of 2013. Mr. Brackeen lectures extensively around the world on entrepreneurship, code, digital economy, artificial intelligence, and machine learning, and is engaged with organizations including Girls Who Code, Black Girls Who Code, and the School District of Miami-Dade County.

Holly Nickels Ciccoricco '56, Education—Ms. Ciccoricco earned a bachelor of science in arts education at the University of the Arts and earned a master of science in arts education at Columbia University. She is an artist and art educator with decades of experience teaching a wide variety of students. Ms. Ciccoricco received the Citizen of the Year Award from Harrington Park, N.J., in 2015 and is a 2015 honoree of the Valley Regional Programs Parent Teacher Organization (special needs and autism spectrum programs). She was Alpine Public School Teacher of the Year in 1992.

Cynthia Carter DeFelice '69, Arts—Ms. DeFelice earned a bachelor of arts, magna cum laude, from William Smith College and a master of library science from Syracuse University. She is the award-winning author of more than 30 novels and picture books for readers age 4 to 14, and the winner of the New York State Knickerbocker Award for Juvenile Literature and the New York State Empire Award for Excellence in Children's Literature.

Charles Edgar "Ed" Haldeman, Jr., '66, JD, CFA, Business—Mr. Haldeman earned a bachelor's degree from Dartmouth College, and a law degree and a master of business administration at Harvard. He has more than 40 years experience in financial services, capital markets, finance, and accounting. His work at the Federal Housing Finance Agency after the 2008 crisis led Bloomberg Businessweek to name him one of the 50 most powerful people in real estate in 2010.

Debbie M. Lewis, '79 DMD, Athletics—Dr. Lewis earned a bachelor of science in sociology and a doctor of dentistry degree at the University of Pittsburgh. She was the first woman to enter Abington Hoops' 1,000-point club and earned a variety of honors while playing basketball for the University of Pittsburgh. She was inducted into the Pittsburgh Women's Basketball Hall of Fame in 1992, earned the University of Pittsburgh Award of Distinction in 2007, and the Atlantic Coast Conference Legend Award for 2015.

Hon. Gary S. Silow '69, Service—Mr. Silow earned a bachelor's degree from Penn State University and a law degree from Temple University. He has served since 2009 as a judge on the Montgomery County Court of Common Pleas. Before his election to the court, Mr. Silow spent 29 years as an attorney and has served as a district attorney and as chair of the Board of Viewers of Montgomery County. He has worked closely with Abington Senior High School, including presiding over citizenship oaths for new Americans at the high school.

David A. Bressler, '71, DDS, Science (posthumous)—Dr. Bressler earned his bachelor's degree and doctor of dental surgery degree from Temple University and a certification in pediatric dentistry from St. Christopher's Hospital for Children. He was the founder of Doc Bresler's Cavity Busters, a pediatric dental practice that grew to seven locations employing more than 30 doctors and 200 staff. He earned numerous awards during his career, including Temple University School of Dentistry's Distinguished Alumnus of the Year.

Daniel E. Dean, '28, Athletics (posthumous)—Mr. Dean earned a bachelor of science in economics at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business. He was IC4A cross-country champion in 1931, placed third in the AAU Olympic trials, and was Abington's first Olympian, competing in the 1932 games, where he placed eighth in the 5,000-meter event. He served in the Navy during World War II, attaining the rank of commander.

Two former administrators die

Norman Schmid, 87, a well-liked longtime Abington High School principal, died April 8, 2018. He was employed by the district from 1956 until his retirement in 1996, including substitute teaching at Glenside-Weldon, teaching American history at Huntingdon Junior High, and serving as an assistant principal at the high school before becoming principal in 1969. The Norm Schmid Library Media Center is named in his honor; he lobbied the school board for more than two decades to expand the high school library. Survivors include his wife, Bonnie, a former Abington teacher, and two daughters.

Dr. Carl Hoffman, superintendent from 1967 to 1982, died in March 2018 in Pompano Beach, Fla., where he had lived for many years. He was 97. Before becoming superintendent, he taught at Beaver College (now Arcadia University), where he met his future wife. He traveled into his 90s, returning to Japan where he had been on the first U.S. ship to enter Japan at the end of World War II.

History

lished in Pennsylvania in 1834.

In the middle 1800s, Abington Township's first public school was at West Avenue and Cedar Street in Jenkintown, which was not yet a borough. In 1888, Abington had five schools at the pre-high school level:

- Plank Road School
- Saw Mill School near Huntingdon Pike and Cedar Road, which replaced an old eight-square school built in 1834 and demolished in 1873. The old eight-square (octagonal) school enrolled 60 students.
- Weldon School in Jenkintown between Easton Road and Abington Avenue.
- Hard Corner School
- Edgehill School at Edgehill and York roads.

Rockledge's school opened in 1889 on Huntingdon Pike and Robbins Avenue. After a fire in 1902, it was rebuilt on the same grounds. This school closed in 1977 and is now the Rockledge municipal building. Interestingly, this was the only school without a playground. Physical education teachers had to walk students across Huntingdon Pike and down Church Road to an open space for outdoor classes.

From 1896 to 1931, nine elementary schools were built:

- North Hills Elementary, built in 1896, was at Central and Pine avenues. The school's original name was the Remlu School, a reversed spelling of the name of the man who developed the area, a Mr. Ulmer. From 1908 to 1914, it was called the Edgehill School, then North Glenside, and finally North Hills in 1928. The school closed in 1981.
- McKinley was built in 1897-98 on Cadwalader Avenue and was the only public school designed by noted architect Horace Trumbauer. A new McKinley School was built in 1968 on Cedar Road.
- Park School on Park Avenue in Crestmont was built in 1901 and closed in 1966.
- Hamilton School was built in 1954 and closed in 1984.
- Glenside-Weldon Elementary and Junior High were built in 1906-07, both closing in 2001.
- Highland (1923) and Overlook (1926) were both rebuilt in 2005.
- Roslyn, built in 1926, was rebuilt in 2007.
- Cedar Road (1930) closed in 1980.
- Ardsley was established in 1931, closed in 1978, and is now the Ardsley Community Education Center at Spear and Cricket avenues.

Other elementary schools were Rydal (1959), Willow Hill (1965), and Copper Beach (2001). Rydalbrook was built in 1979 on Meetinghouse Road and became Rydal West in 1994.

Abington High School was built in 1887-88 as a two-year high school; the small building still stands on Susquehanna Road opposite the Abington YMCA and is marked with a plaque identifying it as the original "Abington School House." The first commencement took place in 1888 with two graduates, Annie Tomlinson and Jenne McMahan. Additions to the original high school were made in 1908-09 and the larger high school served until 1956, when the present high school opened. The former high school then served as Huntingdon Junior High School until 1983, and was demolished in 1996. The old Abington Junior High on Highland Avenue was built in 1909, closed in 1983, and is now the administration building.

North Campus, for grades 9 and 10, opened in 1964 adjacent to the high school (which was then known as South Campus). The North Campus building now is Abington Junior High School, and houses grades 7 through 9.

Abingtonians can certainly be proud of our highly ranked schools and quality education throughout the years.
