Abington Ghost Stories

From the president

Dave Clark '65

It is hard to believe, but next year will be my 50th high school reunion. This is something I did not think about until I started attending the Fifty Plus luncheons each October, when I give an update on the alumni association and ask for donations.

I have spent more years volunteering with the alumni association than the 12 years going through Abington's school system. This not only applies to me, and I am happy to say that we have about 25 volunteers. We are proud to say that we have been able to give out scholarships each year for the past 52 years to deserving students to assist them with their higher education.

We all know as we age that the years seem to fly by, and on that note, it is important for all class reunions to be planned well in advance. For example if your reunion is 2 years away you should be looking for a place to have the reunion and mailing your classmates soon. Many people today plan vacations and special events 1 and 2 years ahead.

One thing I am happy to have started 5 years ago was that I met for lunch with two of my friends from my old neighborhood of Fox Chase Manor behind Cedar Road Elementary School. That group has now grown to about 22 guys who attend a luncheon every 3 to 4 months at Mike's Bar and Grill in Warminster. We start at noon and at 3:30 we finally leave the restaurant. We have guys coming from the Poconos, Lancaster, Maryland, and New York. You may want to consider doing the same thing!

Abington service learning program strikes gold

Abington High School may be considered to have the top high school Service Learning Program in the United States. This program is spearheaded by Mary Rodgers, who came to Abington Junior High School in 1991, moved to the high school in 1996, and took charge of this venture in 1999. Mrs. Rodgers experiences include working for the United Nations program CARE, spending more than 400 hours per year at Mercer Hospital in New Jersey, helping fund an orphanage in South Korea, running a children's summer camp, and being an interpreter and guide at Washington's Crossing. In 2008, she was named the Service Learning Practitioner of the Year in the United States. Her leadership led to an amazing success in early 2013 when 14 Abington students were awarded congressional gold medals for outstanding service to the community. Nationally, 249 gold medals were awarded, with Abington capturing more than most states. For example, New York State had 8 winners, Illinois had 2, and Texas 14. One high school, Abington, had 14 of Pennsylvania's 33 gold medals. What a proud achievement for Abington students and for the program!

The high school students have completed more than 1 million hours of service since 1999. Students are required to complete a minimum of 50 hours during their four years (9th through 12th grades). For the congressional gold medal students, a minimum of 400 hours must be achieved, in addition to 200 hours in personal development and 200 hours in physical fitness. Many of these hours include adventure or travel. Students can opt to be tutors, hospital volunteers, library aides, food drive workers, and more. Some have chosen to build a school in Nicaragua, run eye clinics in Africa, and work with an eyeglass recycling program. Students have the choice of different levels of participation. They can obtain a School Student Service Award for a minimum of 50 hours of service, or a Presidential Volunteer Service Award for a minimum of 100 hours of service. One of the benefits of the program has been that many of Abington's students have continued to be service-oriented through college and their careers.

The program has been so successful and well-known that the day that the world welcomed its 7 billionth inhabitant, Abington students received an invitation to the United Nations to help celebrate the occasion.

Abington Alumni Association salutes Mrs. Rodgers and the award-winning Service Learning Program.

Ghost Ramblings

Louise Duran Travis '62 has written a book describing her family's life after her son had a life-changing accident and became a multiple trauma survivor with traumatic brain injury. The Journey is about his amazing story of recovering from near death in 1986 to bowling a perfect 300 game in 2011. In November 2013, the governor of Arizona and the mayor of Tempe, Ariz., issued proclamations declaring a Stan Travis day and week. Louise hopes to educate, inspire, and motivate others on their personal journeys.

Dave Molter '62 and Mort Milne '63 are restoring a family-owned 1970 vintage motorcycle to honor a Marine pilot killed in the line of duty. Assisting on the project is Gary Maucher, a nationally known motorcycle preservation specialist. The motorcycle will be given to the serviceman's young son when he reaches maturity.

Dallas J. Taylor '62, AIA, is a registered architect with national certification with his company, TGS Architects Inc., based in Dallas, Texas. Dallas attended John Brown University and the University of Arkansas, where he received three degrees in architecture and engineering. He specializes in commercial design and has designed more than 500 banks and credit unions from Manchester, N.H., to Pleasanton, Calif. Most of his architecture can be seen in the Southwest with hundreds of offices, high-rise buildings, shopping centers, and resort condominiums. Dallas has been to Japan 12 times, often living with Japanese families, and has designed buildings in both Japan and Korea. The interaction of cultures has often influenced his designs. A proud alumnus, he's not ready to retire, and credits Abington High School with laying the foundation for his education. He lives in Austin, Texas, with his wife, Veta. They have four children and four grandchildren.

Dick Moritz '64 recently retired as president of Target Communications, Inc., a public relations firm he founded in 1986. Now semi-retired, he continues to do technical writing for major auto parts companies and enthusiast magazines such as Hot Rod. He also races a vintage MG in competitive events at Watkins Glen, Pocono International Raceway, and other racetracks throughout the Northeast. He is also a lifelong tuba player (Abington Band) and plays with his church orchestra, with the Celebration Brass Sextet, and with the Red Hill Band, a 110-year-old community band in central Montgomery County. He owns a '58 Corvette that he drove on the street for 10 years, and finally did a body-off restoration in 1978-80. Then the car received an NCRS Top Flight Award and a Bloomington Gold Certification. Dick and his wife, Linda, have been married for 45 years.

Tim Simmons '65 has retired after 44 years in the computer and telecommunications industry, the last 17 years with Verizon. You can usually find him hanging out at Otto and Ron's Lukoil in Jenkintown, as he stops in for lunch almost daily to ensure the computers and network are running smoothly. He continues to support the Automotive Service Association (Pennsylvania chapter), Corvette Club of Delaware, Landscape Design by deLuca (his sister Carol's business), and the Alumni Association as treasurer. He has eight grandchildren and lives in Huntingdon Valley with his wife, Nancy, whom he met at Abington in '65.

Robert Cummings taught biology, chemistry, and advanced placement biology at Abington Senior High School. He would like to reach out to former students via email at mrcummingsats@juno.com or with his blog at mrcummingsats.wordpress.com. The interactive blog is biological and psychological conversation. Please include year of graduation.

Tom Hankinson '78 was a partner in a storage facilities construction company for 15 years. In 2010, he started Summit construction, a national company based in Orlando. Much of their work has been in retrofitting existing buildings into charter schools, but they do commercial construction as well. Tom and his son, Ben, are active karting enthusiasts. Tom and his wife, Dori, live in Winter Park, Fla. Their daughter, Emily, lives in Atlanta.

Ken Montgomery, Jr. '81 continues to uphold the family tradition of superior automotive service at Montgomery Service Center. He is married to Gina Rondinelli '85. Their son, Ken III, attends Abington's Copper Beach Elementary School, and plays tee ball in the Ardsley league. Summertime finds the family either in Strathmere, N.J., or racing their '68 Plymouth Barracuda super stock at area racetracks. Ken Sr.'s racing car, the Triple Nickel, is on loan to the Eastern Museum of Motor Racing in York, Pa., until December 31. Ken Sr. was the recipient of the posthumous Hall of Fame award for 2013 (see article on page 5).

Robert Tranquillo '87 is the head of the biomedical engineering department at the University of Minnesota. He received his doctorate from the University of Pennsylvania and studied for a year at Oxford University in England. More recently, his research program has focused on the role of cell behavior in cardiovascular and neural tissue engineering applications. His research has attracted more than $13 million in grant money. Robert is a fellow of the American Institute of Medical and Biological Engineering and the Biomedical Engineering Society, and a Distinguished McKnight University professor. Robert credits Martin Hubley, former Abington High calculus teacher and football coach, for awaking his interest in science and mathematics. He lives with his wife and four children in Arden Hills, Minn.

Arnold Yeager '06 has been promoted to service writer/manager of an automotive service center in the area after joining the organization 7 years ago. His interest in real estate has led him to become a landlord in Elkins Park. In his spare time he helps his dad with a small landscaping, yard maintenance, and snow removal business. Arnold lives in Cheltenham with his pure black lab, Riley.

Hall of Fame 2013

On November 21, 2013, Abington High School inducted the following alumni into its Hall of Fame:

Margie Goldsmith '61 (Arts). Margie won the prestigious SATW Gold Lowell Thomas Award and 26 other awards. She traveled to 127 countries and wrote about all of them. She contributes to Elite Traveler, Robb Report, Visa Black Card, Business Jet Traveler, Hemispheres, American Way, Islands, Affluent Traveler, and Huffington Post. She is a published novelist, tri-athlete, and marathoner, speaks French and Spanish, and plays blues harmonica.

Wayne Cunningham, EDD, '50 (Athletics). At Duke University, Wayne earned All-South and All Atlantic Coast Conference honors in soccer. He received his doctorate in health education from Temple University. Wayne played softball and basketball for the 5th Army Headquarters in Chicago, and in 1969 was the short-stop for Sal's, the ISC fast pitch world champions. He officiated soccer and wrestling for 41 years, and received the Bud Lindholm Award for outstanding service to Philadelphia high school wrestling in 2000. He coached softball and soccer at Campbell University in North Carolina and New Jersey City State University, soccer at Kean College in New Jersey, and softball at Ursinus College in Pennsylvania. Wayne coached the Del Val-Philadelphia 16- to 18-year-old girls softball team to seven consecutive gold medals in the Pennsylvania Keystone games. He was named softball coach of the year by the Intelligencer newspaper in 2001 while coaching William Tennent High School. Wayne played in six national senior games in softball and basketball representing Pennsylvania. From 2008 to 2012, he taught the Principles of Coaching course at Montgomery County Community College. Wayne was elected to the Philadelphia Softball Hall of Fame in 1986 and the Philadelphia Chapter of the Pennsylvania State Sports Hall of Fame in 2000.

Stacey Cartagenova '89 (Business). Stacey has a master's of science in speech language pathology and was a practitioner for many years before she founded Therapy Source, Inc., a premier therapy staffing company, and a national provider of a hybrid therapy delivery model in 2001. The company has 50 employees working with 1,300 therapists nationwide and operates in 34 states and the District of Columbia. Therapy Source provides assurance that children receive speech, physical, and occupational therapy to contribute to their growth and success. Stacey has been honored by the National Association of Executive and Professional Women. She promotes a can-do attitude and let's-get-it-done mentality in her role of chief energizing officer in her company.

Elaine P. Whelan '60 (Education). Elaine graduated summa cum laude from Drexel University and began graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania. She then married and relocated to Maryland, where she completed her graduate work at Johns Hopkins University in advanced statistics while being sponsored by the Department of Health and Human Services.

She served on Robert Ball's staff at the Social Security Administration, where she assigned numbers to newborns, and developed part-time professions in the federal government for women with small children. She has been a regular columnist for three journals of dental technology. Elaine authored two books, one of which, My Mom's Making History – the Story of Computers, Copyrights, and Creativity, was selected for Read Across America Day in 2005. She is the cofounder of Strohl Industries, the founder of Copyrights Promote Creativity Project, and was president of Main Street Systems and Software.

Col. (ret.) John A. "Jack" Islin '51 (Government). Jack attended Penn State's Ogontz Campus (now Abington Campus), and earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Pennsylvania. He was commissioned in the Army as a second lieutenant, and attended flight school and helicopter school. He commanded assault helicopters units during his 2 years in Vietnam, where he earned 76 medals (seven for heroism), and logged more than 2,000 hours of combat flying. Upon retirement from the Army, Jack established and directed the Helicopter Flight Test Center for Sikorsky, a division of United Technologies. The effort to test the Blackhawk and the Navy Seahawk helicopters resulted in earning the Kelly Johnson Award, which is on display at the Smithsonian Institution. Jack also served as group senior vice president for Citicorp, where he was named one of the 25 top executives in the industry.

Richard L. Cole, Jr., Esq., '61 (Service). Richard received his undergraduate degree from Stonehill College in Easton, Mass., and earned his law degree from Villanova University School of Law. He served in Gov. Richard Thornburgh's administration as chief counsel for the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, which included the state Board of Rehabilitation and the Bureau of Disability Determination. Richard was also the vice president and general counsel for United Hospitals, Inc., in Philadelphia. He then entered private practice, where he devoted a considerable portion of his professional life with working with severely disabled individuals. Richard moved to Sumpter County, Fla., where he is a member of the county zoning board and chairs the county chamber of commerce and governmental affairs committee. He also serves as chair of the board of directors of the Able Trust, and is on the Affordable Housing Advisory Committee and Transportation Disadvantaged Coordinating Boards for Sumpter County.

Lloyd C. Bobb, PhD, '57 (Science). Lloyd worked for Ford Scientific Laboratory as a researcher before earning his doctorate in physics from Temple University in 1971. His thesis topic was inelastic light scattering from ferroelectric materials. He then worked for the Army at the Frankford Arsenal, performing research on materials that could be used to protect the eyes of the troops against lasers that were being introduced into the battlefield. He later worked for the Navy at the Naval Air Development Center (NADC), the Naval Research Laboratory, and the Naval Air Warfare Center, Aircraft Division. He researched lasers and numerous improvements to non-acoustic submarine detection and localization systems. After leaving the government, he founded Applied Science Corp., a scientific consulting business. Lloyd has published 400 items, including peer-reviewed journal articles and government reports. He holds about 20 patents, and has received numerous government awards, including several for outstanding independent research, the NADC scientific achievement award, and the Meritorious Civilian Service Award.

Ken Montgomery, Sr. '60 (Post-humous). Ken's career touched both the athletics and business categories. He has a long and impressive career as both a community-based family businessman, and as the driver/engineer of a championship hot rod racing team. Family came first for Ken, but his accomplishments as owner and operator of Montgomery's Service Station in Jenkintown and as a hot rod owner and racer are impressive. He was the engine builder, the team coordinator, car builder, machinist, and mechanic. His service station was voted one of Philly's best, and was indeed a community mainstay. Ken was inducted into the National Hot Rod Association Hall of Fame and into the Super Stock Hall of Fame.

Sports

Abington High's football team, under coach Tim Sorber, finished the season with a 10-4 record and a No. 10 ranking in the Delaware Valley. In the first round of the District 1 playoffs, Abington defeated Upper Dublin 55-25, scoring on its first three possessions. Jordan Neely ran back two kickoffs in the early minutes of the game, one for 85 yards and one for 89 yards. In the next game, Abington upset top-seeded Garnet Valley with a last-minute touchdown to win the game 26-21. In the district semifinal, Neshaminy upended Abington 35-14 and went on to win the District 1 championship. The season closed on Thanksgiving morning with an exciting overtime game in which Cheltenham edged out Abington 35-34. Abington was led throughout the season by All-Southeastern Pennsylvania running back Craig Reynolds, who finished with a season total of more than 2,100 yards rushing and scored 31 touchdowns. Reynolds also made first-team all-defense, and lineman Jake Clark made the second team all-defense.

The boys and girls basketball teams both made the state playoffs. The girls team finished in sixth place in District 1 after upsetting second-seeded Garnet Valley 38-33 in the second round, finally losing to North Penn. In the state playoffs, Abington beat Pocono Mountain West 55-36, then beat Wilson West Lawn 53-43 in the second round. They were eliminated in the quarterfinals by Spring-Ford, 50-40. Deja Rawls and Michael Harris led the team throughout the season to finish off a very successful year with a 21-9 record.

The boys team had an outstanding season and finished with a 25 and 6 record, and a No. 5 ranking in the Delaware Valley by the Philadelphia Inquirer. Finishing sixth in the District 1 playoffs, they qualified for the state championships. Emmaus was dispatched in the first round, 65-52, and York in the second round, 59-53. In the quarterfinals, Abington upset a strong Martin Luther King High School (Philadelphia) 56-52 in overtime. In the state semifinals, Abington lost 58-54 to New Castle High School, the eventual state champions. This fine finish was the best since Abington's state championship in the middle 1970s. The team was led by all-league first teamers Matt Penecale and Amir Hinton, both juniors, and second teamers Anthony Lee and Lazaros Mackrides, both seniors.

The chess team won team and individual state titles over the weekend in Carlisle. In all, the team scored 17 wins. The team consisted of Sasha Serebriiskii, Nathanael Cheng, Andrew Giguere, and Amber McElhinney. Sophomore Serebriiskii led the team with a 5-0 record and claimed the individual state title. The high school team is coached by teacher Shawn Simmons.

Abington loses two longtime educators

Paul Wilson, retired Abington educator, died January 22, 2014. After serving in the Army Air Corps during World War II, Paul worked for 40 years as a teacher and principal in the Abington School District. He taught at Overlook Elementary School, and served as principal at North Hills Elementary, Glenside-Weldon Elementary, and McKinley Elementary. He was a past president of the Pennsylvania Elementary Principal's Association and Kutztown Alumni Association, and a board member of the Briar Bush Nature Center in Abington.

Norman Kelly, a former Alumni Association vice president and longtime scholarship committee member, died December 4, 2013, at age 93. One of Norm's goals was to make every graduate a member of the Alumni Association. To this end, every year he made gifts of many Life Memberships, beginning with his class of 1938.

Norm taught social studies from 1946 to 1983 at Abington Junior High School, where he started the school wrestling program. For his activities as a classroom teacher, he was awarded the Freedom Foundation Medal at Valley Forge.

Norm was a naval veteran of World War II, a distinguished athlete in high school and college. He also served many years on the Ivyland town council and as mayor of Ivyland, where he lived.
